

Application Guidelines: 2026 Social Practice Expo

We're super excited to announce our 2026 Social Practice Expo. This event aims to promote the integration of classroom learning with social action. It will showcase outstanding student projects from the past two academic years that encourage both faculty and students to step outside the comfort zone of higher education and create a deeper social impact. The key details are as follows:

I. Eligibility

The competition is open to teams formed by faculty and students across the National Taiwan University System (NTU System), which includes: National Taiwan University of Science and Technology (NTUST), National Taiwan Normal University (NTNU), and National Taiwan University (NTU).

Proposers: The main proposer for each team must be a currently enrolled student from one of the three schools listed above.

Team Members: While the proposer must be a current student, other team members can include graduates, provided they are alumni of one of the three NTU System universities.

Faculty Advisors: Both full-time and part-time faculty are welcome to serve as advisors.

Student/Club Self-Proposals: If your proposal is driven by a student club or is a completely independent student initiative, you can simply write "N/A" in the Faculty Advisor section.

II. Competition Entry Qualifications

Your submission must be the result or outcome of a course taken within the last two academic years (113-2 through 115-1).

Format is flexible! There are absolutely no restrictions on the format of your work.

Stage of Completion: Submissions can be a fully completed project/achievement or a proposal in the conceptual stage.

For Ideas/Proposals: If your entry is still an idea or a concept, it must be presented and explained using a simulated plan or mock-up, clearly illustrating your vision and intended impact.
